- noon to 1 p.m.
- RMU Multimedia Conference Room, Centre for Clinical Research Room 114, 5790 University Avenue, Halifax, NS

Topic

Building and Managing Your Own Research Team

Building and managing the right team is fundamental to building a successful research program. This session will discuss issues related to recruiting, mentoring, setting and managing expectations, skill development, and making sure your program is running smoothly.

Speaker

Dr. Robin Urquhart

Dr. Robin Urquhart is an Assistant Professor and Ramia Scientist in the Department of Surgery, with cross-appointments in the Department of Community Health and Epidemiology and Division of Medical Education. She is also a Senior Scientist with the Beatrice Hunter Cancer Research Institute and an Affiliate Scientist with the Nova Scotia Health Authority. Her research program relates to understanding and optimizing the movement of evidence-based innovations into clinical practice and policy.
