Topic

Getting Published

In this presentation, the speaker will address the benefits (to society and the researcher) of publishing the results of scientific research as well as a practical how-to guide for doing so as painlessly and often as possible.

Speaker

Dr. Lee Kirby, MD, FRCPC

Dr Kirby received his MD degree from Dalhousie University in Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada. His specialty training in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation was carried out at the University of Washington in Seattle, Washington, USA, at Dalhousie University and at Stoke Mandeville Hospital in England. He is a Professor in the Division of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation in the Department of Medicine at Dalhousie University with cross-appointments in Kinesiology and Community Health and Epidemiology. He is based at the Nova Scotia Rehabilitation Centre Site of the Nova Scotia Health Authority. His primary research interest is the safety and performance of wheelchairs. He has held research grants from a number of national and international funding bodies. He has published 143 papers in peer-reviewed journals and 302 abstracts or proceedings of presentations to national or international meetings. He heads the team that developed the Wheelchair Skills Program (www.wheelchairskillsprogram.ca), a low-tech, high-impact training program that is relevant for both more- and less-resourced settings.
